ABOUT

In a brand new collaborative effort with some of the most established jazz musicians in the Ukrainian capital, Kiev, Maltese saxophonist Carlo Muscat presents his latest album, Wool, the fourth one under his name. Recorded in Ukraine in September 2020, the project features a collection of original compositions from the past ten years and arranged specifically for this album's line-up: Yuriy Seredin on piano, Konstantin Ionenko on double bass, and Oleg Markov at the drums.

The September session happened unexpectedly, with very little preparation and just one full day in the studio. The bandleader talked about his approach in the studio and how he tries to bring out the most genuine aspects of the music and the players:

"I love short recording sessions. There is no time to overthink your playing - it really captures the essence of the music and the spirit of each musician. Your first impulse in playing is always the closest to your true nature."

” There is no dead weight on here, all of the tunes are excellent. Some of the playing is cool in that modern European way, but it is a music of deep soul and grit.

Like the rest of you, I have a lot of music to choose from these days, but this has been getting a lot of repeat spins, and there's always something new to hear. Highly recommended!
